Irish singer, songwriter and peace activist Tommy Sands is most popularly recognized as a folk musician and entertainer. However, his true vocation is his role as an ambassador of peace. His travels to through Europe, India, Cuba, Israel, Palestine, Afghanistan and other points on the globe bring his message to places in need of peace. He adds his knowledge and experience of the former "Troubles" of Northern Ireland to an already intimate understanding of the role of music as a vehicle for peace.

In this seminar, Tommy will share stories and wisdom gathered in more than 30 years of employing music for peace and reconciliation on global and local levels.

This seminar is a prelude to his concert on Thursday, Feb. 19 at 7pm, to be held at Unity Center of Columbia, 1600 W. Broadway. His son and daughter, Fionán and Moya Sands will be performing with him at the concert. Visit www.moceltic.org for more information.

Thank you to Taylor House Inn for sponsoring musician accommodations for these events!
